I'm writing to introduce you to Moby Botanicals and our unique, therapeutic, precision-dosing program that offers patients the medicinal benefits of cannabis without the recreational high.

Volumes of research (scholarly reference articles gladly provided upon request) have been published attesting to the value of engaging our endocannabinoid receptors with CBD and THC. Among the findings is the revelation that every human has endocannabinoid receptors and accessing these receptors can be an essential path to health and well-being. And yet, in the local medical cannabis industry, there are too few individuals who truly understand both the amazing therapeutic benefits of cannabinoids and how to create and administer them safely and effectively.

Moby Botanicals is not a retail dispensary. We work one-on-one with our patients, providing them with low-dose capsules that are then ramped up slowly, if required, in order to ensure they get optimal benefits without side effects.

Product Creation: No Guesswork

We go above and beyond our mandated regulatory requirements by using an accredited laboratory to test our products for all known contaminants. After successful testing, our licensed pharmacist precision-doses capsules with ISO certified equipment. The custom formulations we provide address each patient's unique needs using pharmaceutical dosing so that you and your patients know exactly what they are ingesting.

Patient Care: Consistent, one-on-one communication

At Moby Botanicals, we understand that healing is a process. Our program is designed to pinpoint the needs of each individual's endocannabinoid receptors and fine tune the dosage to provide the optimal therapeutic benefit. Weekly follow-ups allow us to work closely with each individual. We also stay in close contact with their medical providers, facility representatives and/or guardians, when necessary. This level of support allows each unique individual to learn the steps they can take to support their receptor system without experiencing any of the psychoactive effects.

About Moby: Safe and experienced

With over a decade of experience and data to support the successful benefits of our protocols, Moby Botanicals is completely unique in this field, both in Maine and nationally. We've built a deep understanding of how engaging the endocannabinoid receptor system can lead to better health. From complex neurological issues to rare genetic disorders, we have seen people with a wide array of diagnosis experience positive outcomes. With cannabinoid receptors throughout the entire body, many issues can be impacted with a small dose of phyto-cannabinoids. Whether we are seeking to improve quality of life or assist with end of life transition, you can rest assured that your patients will be provided with an unparalleled commitment to their care.

We would love to talk with you more about how we can help care for your patients. Please feel free to call with questions or referrals.

With care,
